FOR MAGISTRATE

Wrigley, Ky., June 15, 1943

I am glad to take this opportunity to announce through the medium of the Licking Valley Courier my candidacy for Magistrate in District No. 3, subject to the primary election August 7, 1943.

A few months ago I was appointed by the governor to fill out an unexpired term. During this time I tried conscientiously to serve the people in my district and county. I feel assured that there is nothing that I can say about myself that the people don't already know. I am a farmer and merchant. I have a large family and have worked hard all my life in order to eke out a meager livelihood. This office does not pay but little salary, but I am anxious for the opportunity to serve as Magistrate for another term in order that I may be able to do something for my district and county in a progressive manner. I will cast my vote on all occasions for the uplifting and upbuilding of Morgan county. I urge all voters to vote in the polls in the August primary and to cast their votes for the man who they feel is best qualified to serve them as Magistrate. (adv. 246)

COMMUNITY CANNERY

The Morgan county board of education, in cooperation with the vocational Education department, is sponsoring a community cannery at West Liberty. The board of education has in stock about 30,000 to 40,000 No. 3 tin cans. The cannery will be in operation in about two weeks. It will be under the supervision of a trained technician.

The government hopes that everybody will exert the utmost effort to can all fruits, vegetables, and meats possible. The tin cans were allowed by W. P. B. for the sole purpose of home canning. We must all can our surplus food on hand and, as a rule, food canned in tin cans with steam is much more preferable than the inconsistency of home canning. People who have farm products, etc., will have to prepare the food at home or at the cannery and stay until the canning is finished. It is estimated that 3,000 to 4,000 cans may be finished in one day.

The board of education is sponsoring this community cannery with no idea of making money. It will help you out in this food emergency. You can't eat enough food, do you? You don't have to worry about it. The grocery store, and thereby effect a saving. The cost to each individual will be about five to six cents a No. 3 can. This charge is made to offset the cost of cans, light, water, steam, and labor.

This may be the beginning of a small canning factory for all the farmers and people of the county cooperate and take advantage of this opportunity. At present it is advisable that you come to the cannery to prepare your products because the cannery is equipped with washing vat, mulchers, retorts, etc. Details will be published later concerning the procedure of how best to go about your preparations. Remember this cannery is for you and we will appreciate at any time any helpful suggestions you may have concerning improvements.

Rural schools will start Monday, July 19, 1943.

In Naval Training

S. navy, have been assigned to the naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., where they will be given eight weeks of instruction stressing physical conditioning, the fundamentals of seamanship, and an indoctrination into naval customs and procedure. Harris, Dehart; Luther Eldon Whitte, 18, son of Maggie Whitte, Redwine; Carl Ferguson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferguson, Relief; and Lawrence Tilden Brown, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reka Keeton, Wrigley.

POSTOFFICE SPEEDERS

The new method of speeding up mail deliveries, thru addition of a branch post office number to the address on mail for delivery in large cities, is being placed in operation rapidly. Reports from many cities say it has been received enthusiastically by the press, postmasters, business concerns, and the public.

The new system speeds up the separation of mail for distribution to branch offices and permits much more rapid handling of mail by inexperienced postal clerks, thousands of whom have been employed to replace personnel who have gone into the armed forces and into war industries.

Rapid increase in volume of mail and the loss of some 30,000 postal employees to the armed forces made it necessary to adopt the plan, in the interest of accurate, efficient mail service and for the relief of postal personnel who are carrying an extremely heavy burden of work.

An example of the new type of address is:

John C. Smith
222 Mattapan Ave.
Boston 8
Massachusetts

The number after the name of the city indicates the branch post office (or "postal unit") thru which delivery is made. Each resident of the large cities is asked by his postmaster to add the postal unit number to his return address, and to notify all to whom he writes that his address is not complete without the number.

Residents of small cities, towns, and rural regions should inquire of their correspondents in the large cities concerning the number assigned to the city residents' branch post office so that the mail may be expedited. The degree to which mail will be speeded depends upon the extent to which the numbers are used by mailers.

Under the new plan, mail that is sent to large cities, carrying the postal unit number, will be distributed more quickly than possible now and with much less strain on postal clerks. While mail which does not bear the number will be delivered about as rapidly as at present, it will not receive the benefit of the speedier distribution and may not avoid possible delays caused by inability of the depleted force of experienced employees to handle all mail.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER

BY DR. B. B. JONES, Sr., Founder of B. B. JONES COLLEGE, Cleveland, Tenn.

"For by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God: We are not only saved by grace, but grace teaches us how to live. We read in Titus, 'For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared unto all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world.'"

The writer has observed a tendency on the part of certain Christians to pay no attention to what grace teaches. Some of these Christians are very orthodox. They act as if they were saying, "I am saved by the grace of God. I am going to heaven when I die, so I am going ahead and do just as I please in this world." Such people do not know the real meaning of grace. A Christian lives as he pleases, but a real Christian pleases to serve God.

"He that is born of God does not commit sin," we read in the first Epistle of John. The best rendering of this would be, "He that is born of God does not practice sin." According to this, the habitual sinner is not born of God. There is something inside the life of a saved man that might be compared to a motor in an automobile. This divine motor power in the heart of a Christian carries the Christian down the road of the purpose of God for his life.

Christians are supposed to live soberly, righteously, in the present world. They are supposed to deny ungodliness and worldly lusts. In other words, Christians are supposed to be decent and upright. They are supposed to shoot straight. Someone has said, "A Christian can sin, but no Christian can enjoy sinning." It is one thing to stumble over a stone that Satan puts in a Christian's road. It is another thing to go back day after day to stumble over the same stone. Going back day after day to stumble over the same stone becomes a habit. He that is born of God does not practice going back and stumble over the stone. One stumble for a Christian is about all he can stand. The remorse and bitterness and agony of soul after a stumble is more than a real Christian can endure often. So according to the writer's understanding, these folks who habitually sin have no right to talk about saving grace. "Amazing grace, how sweet the sound, that saved a wretch like me." The grace of God does not only save us from the guilt of sin but grace, when properly understood, will save us from the power of sin in our lives and some day the grace of God will take us home to heaven, where we will be saved forever from the very presence of sin.

FEDERAL ACTIVITIES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

IT SEEMS ONLY A FEW SHORT YEARS AGO, but it was in the early twenties, that I was in Washington attending hearings on a bill which, if enacted, would have taken the government out of the business of competing with private enterprise. The desired law would have stopped the government from printing envelopes. That bill never got onto the floor of the house, although Democratic members of the committee all voted to report it favorably.

The government's competition with the job printing offices of the early twenties was but peanuts as compared with the government's business ramifications of today, exclusive of the conduct of the war or the routine of conducting the government.

There seems no way of determining how extensively the federal government has engaged in business, thus competing with its citizens, or the thousands of cases in which it has become a partner by supplying funds in exchange for stock holdings. Congress has attempted to get a report on the ramifications, but without success. The Citizens' Emergency Committee on Non-Defense Expenditures, after many months of research, assisted by Senator Byrd's committee, has dug out a total of 57 government corporations, and that is not all, nor does it include any of those in which the government has acquired a partnership by stock purchases.

Twenty-six of the 57 corporations represented a total investment of $35,129,000,000 on January 1, 1943. That represents money borrowed on the government's guarantee but it is not included as a part of the national debt. The additional stock sales of these 26 corporations for the present fiscal year, and for which the government is obligated, amount to more than the total net farm income of $10,200,000,000 for last year.

The 57 corporations offer competition for private business in many lines, including banking, building and loan, transportation, both rail and water, sale of electrical appliances, crop and other insurance, including bank deposits, sale of metals and minerals, manufacture of cement, manufacture of rubber, partnership in hotels, business and office buildings, production of spruce trees.

These 57 government corporations, which are competing with privately owned business, pay no taxes and have no interest charges. Thirty-two of them are not subject to an audit of any kind. Several of them loan money on farm and home real estate and have foreclosed on mortgages to a total valuation of $5,638,000,000. The property acquired under foreclosure is offered for sale at nominal prices, thus depreciating other farm and home values.

The government in business in competition with its citizens has shown a remarkable growth since the early twenties.

MR. AMERICAN FARMER—NUMBER ONE BUSINESSMAN
SOME SIX YEARS AGO, Lewis Brown, president of Johns-Manville, told me he was working at the job of "selling agriculture to industry." "Why not also sell industry to agriculture?" I asked. "Why not show the farmer that he is an important part of business?"

The fact is, agriculture is as much a part of American business as is the building of automobiles or any other manufactured product. The farm is not a factory. Its raw materials are rain, sunshine and earth. Out of these ingredients it produces corn and wheat and many other manufactured products. It processes these products into pork, beef and mutton.

Yes, the farm is a factory, our most essential manufacturing and processing plant. Should the farm plants close, no others could long survive. The farm is the foundation on which business of the world is built and the farmer is No. 1 among our business people. He should be recognized as such by himself, as well as by others.

BUDDING BUREAUS
IN WASHINGTON, BUREAUS grow with the rapidity of Jack's beanstalk. I knew the office of information of the department of agriculture when it consisted of three people. That was in 1913. In 1917, the occasion for the department ceased to exist, but the department continued. An appropriation of more than one million and a half dollars is asked for it for 1944. I wonder why?

BABYLON AND BERLIN
LIKE NEBUCHADNEZZAR OF OLD, Hitler should be able to see the handwriting on the wall. An Allied army once landed in Europe, the end of Nazism should not be far away. The sins of Berlin will destroy it, as Babylon was destroyed. Let us hope it may be a lasting lesson.

HERE IS A RECIPE for saving paper. Take the adjectives out of the publicity "hand-outs" of the government's propagandists.

One Whole Chicken Can Be Made Into Two Meals

You're the clever homemaker who saves on chicken by using only half a chicken for roasting. You can have the stuffing, too, by mounding it under the chicken when you roast it in the pan to get all the wonderful flavor of the meat in it.

Most families are so reduced that few homemakers find it necessary to stew or roast a whole chicken for their meals. Instead, it's much smarter to use one half of the chicken for stewing, the other half for roasting, or perhaps in making numerous and delicious dishes using cut up chicken.

Chicken is a good source of protein and we can use it in place of meat dishes regularly. In addition it's a delicious food that combines well with many other types of food, and goes with most vegetables and fruits in the menu.

Consider, for example, many of the chicken salads which can be made up with fruits or vegetables, and for sandwich fillings. Then, too, you can serve chicken either warm or cold with many vegetables and fruits, as a good start on getting what you need of the seven basic food groups necessary to health.

You probably have your own way of stewing and roasting chicken, but instead of using one whole chicken for either of these methods, split it, use one half for stewing, the other for roasting.

Cut the fowl in half, lengthwise, and cook one half with several carrots, celery, parsley, onion, and seasonings in enough water to cover until tender. Make dumplings, if you like, to go with the stew.

*For roast chicken, cook stewing hen split in half lengthwise until tender. Mound 4 to 6 cups of well-seasoned dressing in bottom of shallow pan, well greased where dressing is placed. Arrange dressing to keep outline of chicken. Press cooked half of chicken cut side down over dressing. Brush chicken with melted fat. Bake uncovered in a hot oven (400 degrees) until chicken is nicely browned, about 1 1/2 hours.

A few leftover pieces of chicken either from the roast or from stewing can go into a salad. You'll like this combination with fruit:

Chicken and Fruit Salad Bowl.
(Serves 4 to 6)
1 cup diced chicken
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups seedless grapes
2 oranges, peeled and sectioned
1/2 cup blanched almonds
French dressing
Add salt to chicken. Cover salad bowl with shredded lettuce. Arrange grapes over half of top, oranges over other half. Pass french dressing.

Still another way of stretching your meat, or chicken, if there is absolutely enough to go around is to serve it with potato salad. You may like it hot or you may like it cold. Here's one that's hot:

Hot Potato Salad.
(Serves 6)
6 potatoes, diced
3 slices bacon
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
3 tablespoons chopped onion
6 tablespoons bacon fat
3 tablespoons vinegar
Cook potatoes in jackets until tender. Peel and dice. Cook bacon over low flame until crisp. Remove from pan and break into small pieces and add to hot potato cubes. Add seasoning, parsley and onion. Combine fat and vinegar. Pour over potato mixture and serve hot.

There are still a number of unrationed foods which may fill in nice gaps in menu-making. For example, cottage cheese is an excellent source of both calcium and protein, and you'll enjoy using it in this salad with summer greens:

Cottage Cheese Salad.
(Serves 4 to 5)
2 cups cottage cheese
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup chopped chives
1/2 cucumber diced
1 tablespoon chopped watercress
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
Mix cottage cheese and sour cream lightly with a fork. Add vegetables and diced eggs, and season with salt and pepper. Serve in mounds, garnished with watercress or lettuce and tomato wedges.

Physicians who went through the influenza epidemic of 1918-1919, and witnessed the hopelessness in the treatment of thousands of cases, now look with eager eyes toward future battles with influenza.

It was because influenza went on to pneumonia and bronchopneumonia, and the heart already damaged by influenza was unable to sustain the continued fight against pneumonia and bronchopneumonia, that so many victims died. Now that the physician has at hand the sulfa drugs which have reduced the death rate in pneumonia from nearly 10 per cent to about 3 per cent, he is able to fight influenza and pneumonia successfully.

Some interesting figures were recently released by Dr. Louis I. Dublin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The figures show that there has been a decrease in the death rate of influenza and pneumonia of 65 per cent from 1900 to 1940, that is from 202 per hundred thousand of the population in 1900 to 70 in 1940.

While this is gratifying, the use of the sulfa drugs during 1941 and 1942 has caused an even more rapid decrease.

How remarkable this drop in the death rate really is can only be realized by thinking of the rate of decrease in the years 1900 to 1940, or before the general use of the sulfa drugs. For the general population, the decrease in the death rate from influenza and pneumonia has been at the rate of 1 1/2 per cent a year for the 40 years. During the last two years, judging the whole population by the millions of wage earners and their families of the Metropolitan Insurance company, the death rate has decreased more than 14 per cent a year. In other words, the sulfa drugs have decreased the death rate in influenza and pneumonia over nine times as much each of the last two years as in any of the previous 40 years.

HEALTH BRIEFS
Q.—Will you please advise on the seriousness of polyposis for the benefit of my husband who has them in his nose, but refuses to have them removed.
A.—Your husband is like many others who haven't needed doctors much. However, the polyposis is an obstruction and irritates passages so that it causes coughing. This coughing may cause more serious trouble. Removal of this soft growth is very simple.

PAINFUL FEET

While the word orthopedic means straightening of the feet, orthopedic physicians are consulted by patients who have any trouble with bones and joints of the entire body. That physicians would be of more help to patients if they studied foot pains more, is admitted by the medical profession.

Dr. Barton

That pain in the feet are very often due to infection—teeth, tonsils—is known and patients with painful feet who are not on their feet much are likely suffering with infection. In fact, some orthopedic physicians state that more than half of painful feet are due to infection. And when we think of the number of bones and joints in the feet, in which arthritis can get started, this is not hard to understand.

However, there are a great many cases of painful feet due to bearing the weight of the body. In speaking of functional disorders of the feet (that is not due to disease or infection) Dr. D. J. Morton, New York, in the New York State Journal of Medicine, states that the commonest cause of pain in sole of foot is because the inner bone of the sole of the foot, corresponding with big toe, is shorter than the other four bones and the ligaments supporting it are loose or not as tight as with the other bones in sole of foot. Thus pain here is just like pain in any other joint that is being constantly strained. In other words improper weight distribution, too much at this point, causes the pain.

Suggestions for treatment of painful feet are: (1) less work or play and weight bearing, (2) rest, (3) many short rests during the day with the legs and feet well supported at level of hips, (4) removal of all irritation (corns, calluses, warts) which cause the individual to put his weight elsewhere when walking and avoidance of badly fitting shoes, (5) plunging feet first into hot and then into cold water a few times after the day's work is over to improve the circulation.

Dr. Morton gives a helpful working rule which is to assume (in general) that pain at top and sides of the foot is likely caused by the shoe; when pain is on the bottom of the foot, the trouble is generally inside the foot. An X-ray should be taken from top of foot to sole of both feet.

Lesson Frugal Manager Taught Stuck With Driver

The works manager of a certain railway company had a reputation for meanness.

The pet bee in his bonnet was oil and waste. He was always driving home the fact that if every employee was careful with oil and cotton waste, much money would be saved.

One day he was having a few words with a very new driver.

"Tell me," he ordered, "what would you do if you were driving one day, and saw an express thundering towards you on the same line?"

The novice thought hard. Then: "I'd grab the oilcan, I'd grab the waste—and I'd jump!"

In the Navy a floor is a "deck," doors are "bulkheads," downstairs is "below," and a cigarette is a "Camel." At least, Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men, as it is among men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And a carton of Camels is a favorite gift. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

RECEIVES AWARD

Ezel, Ky., June 14, 1943
Editor Courier:
I received this letter recently in regard to my son, Lt. Conrad Rowland, who is overseas. Please print this in the good old Courier.
Headquarters Fifth Air Force
Dear Mrs. Rowland:
Recently your son was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow American airmen, his country, his home, and to you.

He was cited for extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flights in the southwest Pacific area from October 25, 1942, to January 8, 1943. He took part in more than 50 missions, dropping supplies and transporting troops over territory that was continually patrolled by enemy fighter aircraft. Often landings were made on fields which were only a few miles from Japanese bases. These operations aided considerably in the recent successes in this theater.
Almost every hour of every day your son, and the sons of other American mothers, are doing just such things as these in the southwest Pacific. There is a very real and very tangible contribution to victory and to peace.

I would like to tell you how genuinely proud I am to have men such as your son in my command, and how gratified I am to know that young Americans with such courage and resourcefulness are fighting our country's battle against aggressor nations.
You, Mrs. Rowland, have every reason to share that pride and gratification.

Very sincerely,
GEORGE C. KENNEY,
Lieutenant General, Commanding
MRS. ROWLAND

ARRIVED IN ENGLAND

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Turner have received a letter from their son, Pvt. Buford Turner, which reads, in part, as follows:

Hello Dad and Mother!
I write you a few lines to let you all know that I arrived o.k. We are in England, but we can't tell you at just what place. I am having a good time and I have seen some nice places and some nice country, and we are sure treated nice here.
I had a nice trip across and did not get sick. It was a nice boat that we crossed in. I am with a nice bunch of boys and we all have a good time and like one another.

I guess you have already heard from them that we are o.k. so do not worry about me, for I will be o.k. So just take good care of yourselves and we will be seeing one another after the war. I hope it will not last very much longer.

We are not at our regular camp so when I get at my regular camp I will write you all another letter. Tell Ed and his family hello and that I will write them as soon as I get at my regular camp. Tell them to take good care of themselves and I will be seeing them. Be sure to send my paper to me. If it is a few days before you hear from me, I am o.k. so do not worry, and take care of yourselves. When I get to my regular camp I will write as often as I can. Be sure to answer my letter when you get my address. Love to dad and mother from your son, BUFORD TURNER

For good news read the Courier.

DEFLECTING BULLETS

Some weeks ago we read the story of a soldier who said that a Bible in the pocket of his blouse deflected a Jap bullet and saved his life.

Now comes a soldier from Texas with the news that a notebook and wallet deflected a bullet off his chest and probably saved his life at Attu island.

The incidents may prove something but we do not know what it is.

"LOSING THE PEACE"

We are constantly being advised that unless the United Nations look out, they will lose the peace after winning the war.

This is nonsense. Winning the war will be its own reward, regardless of what happens after the fighting ceases.

It may be that the nations will find it impossible to agree upon a procedure which will make peace permanent and it is quite likely that no perfect world will be precipitated when the fighting ends.

Even so, the winning of the war will represent a tremendous gain for civilization. It will insure the world against Axis tyranny and preserve the fundamentals of Anglo-Saxon freedom for the people of the entire globe.

Even the most ignorant tribe of semi-barbaric nomads will profit through the victory of the United Nations. The world that exists after Germany, Italy, and Japan have been defeated will be so much better than in the event of their victory that comparison is almost impossible.

The "lose the peace" idea is apt to mislead people. The objective of our war is not a re-ordered world. It is to exist, with the incidental opportunity for peoples everywhere to develop peacefully and to improve their condition.

This will be possible when the United Nations win: it will not be possible if the Axis aggressors enslave mankind.

CANNING DEMONSTRATION

There will be a canning demonstration at West Liberty in the Morgan county high school building, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 22.

Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, canning specialist of the university of Kentucky, will be in charge of the demonstration. Drying of fruits and vegetables will also be discussed. You are invited to attend this canning demonstration.

SAVE SEED

Farmers should save as much of the seeds needed for next year as possible. Heavy rain and floods are causing serious damage in many of the seed producing sections. The prospects are that there will be a big reduction in the production of seeds.

Farmers who can save barley, rye, oats, wheat, barley, crimson clover, vetch, and hard grass, lespedeza, corn, and many other kinds of seeds, including garden seeds, should by all means do so. The recent flood in the mid-west has caused serious damage to food and fiber crops. Much of the bottom land around the Mississippi is still under water. In Canada seeding has been delayed at least a month due to wet weather. Many farmers are hand stripping such seeds as orchard grass, crimson clover, and blue grass.

Many complaints have been made regarding poor stands. With seed shortages come poor seed, as a rule, because seed grading is just about eliminated.

CHAPTER I

The sun would rise in a minute now. She and a boy named Potty Welsh—Potty did not matter in the least—were walking home across the Gardens to her studio apartment on the Hill. They had danced till an hour ago, then stopped at Jane Cabot's for an apple and a glass of sauterne; and Robin felt light and ethereal and immensely well and happy. This was one of those June mornings, Potty Welsh noticed it. He murmured something about "... tries the earth if it be in tune," and Robin nodded happily and said:

"It is, isn't it? I mean, in tune? I feel like Christmas morning when you were little and before you came downstairs. I feel as if something wonderful was about to happen."

"Maybe this is it!" Potty suggested, and made her stop to look and to smile. They were halfway across the Gardens, on the path beside the pond. Here was a young man asleep on one of the benches. His head was propped on a folded newspaper, his feet were hanging over the arm of the bench, and a cornucopia of newspaper that looked absurdly like a lily was tucked into the top of his vest under his clasped hands. He was in dinner clothes, flat on his back, smiling in his sleep; and Potty said cheerfully: "This is a terrible thing!"

Robin giggled. "Heavens to Betsy! But Potty, the poor lamb will take his death of cold. We'll have to wake him."

"Better leave these inanimate objects lay," Potty urged. "If you nurse an adder in your bosom you're likely to get added. The fellow has been celebrating."

She made a face at him. "Potty calling the kettle black? We really must!" She tugged at the young man's lapel.

"What we all need," Robin decided, "is toast and coffee. We'll take him to my place, Potty."

Potty demurred; but Potty was just a lay figure, fun enough but nothing serious. Robin insisted, and they piloted the young man to her small apartment. He demanded scrambled eggs on his toast and got them, and went promptly to sleep again, this time on the couch in the studio; and Robin said it was a public scandal and offered to put him out like a cat, and Robin said: "Oh, he's already out—like a light." Then she hurriedly apologized. "Sorry to be trite, Potty. I must be sleepy, or tired, or something. Run along. Let him sleep. G'by."

So Potty ran along. Robin looked at the sleeping young man whose name she had forgotten to enquire, and thought maternally that it was lucky she and Potty had come along in time to rescue him before he did catch cold. Then she went to bed, and when she woke a little past noon the young man was gone. But there was a note pinned to the couch.

"Fear not, queen," he had written. "I go, but I will return." The note was signed "Will." She liked that. It had character. Not Bill. Not Willie. Just Will. She wondered whether he really would return. He did, within the hour. His name turned out to be Will McPhail; and he had a capacity for absurd extravagance which at first amused and then strangely excited her. He told her at once, in matter of fact tones, that he loved her.

"Not that the fact can have any interest for you yet," he said frankly. "But I'm just warning you what to expect. You behold a changed man, Robin. Without going into details, I need only tell you that when you rescued me this morning I wasn't worth it; but from now on, watch me. I'll never take another drink; I'll never look at any other woman but you; I'll—"

"Heavens!" she protested. "Not so many promises! A little performance would go so much further, don't you think?"

"Come on and watch me perform," he challenged; and they dined somewhere, and he refused cocktails, wine, beer. He elaborately scanned the labels on the most harmless soft drinks to be sure they had no alcoholic content; and when a party of his friends joined them, he magnificently averted his eyes from the other girls even when he danced with them, explaining apologetically but firmly that it was a vow! He made Robin laugh—and love him.

"You're a scamp!" she told him, when they said good night. He had just kissed her. "You're a rascal, and I disapprove of you as completely as possible. But you're sort of sweet, just the same."

She lay awake that night calling herself an idiot. Obviously, she must be! She didn't yet know anything about him except that he was fun, and nice-looking, and his name was Will McPhail; and certainly she was not the first girl he had ever kissed. Anyone could tell that. Robin herself, though she was just past twenty years old, was older than her years. Since her father died two years before, she had been self-supporting, capitalizing a real talent with pencil and brush, doing very well, too.

"Heavens to Betsy!" she told herself tonight. "Robin Dale, you're old enough to know better than to get all hot and bothered over a giddy kid who sleeps on park benches. You don't even know his family. Or where he lives or anything!" But she went to sleep wondering whether she would see him next day.

She did. He telephoned at seven to make a luncheon date. At lunch she managed to pin him down to the fact that his home was in Montreal, that he had another year at Tech, that he had one more examination to take before posting off to a summer job in Quebec. They dined together, and he was so sure of himself and of her that Robin felt like a straw caught up in a strong wind.

"We'll be married," he told her confidently, "in about two years, after I've got my degree at Tech and begun to earn enough to support you."

"Idiot! I haven't said I'd marry you!"

"Oh, you will. We've two years to argue about that. Going to be sort of fun, two years of arguing, isn't it?"

"But—if I ever did," she told him in a shy pride, "you wouldn't have to be earning so very much. I do pictures—and sell them, you know."

"We'll be married," he told her confidently.

Maybe I'll support the family, just at first.

"Better and better!" Will told her cheerfully. "You're the sort of a wife even Angus would go for."

"Who's Angus?"

"He's my big brother. He's a first-class Scot; not a waster like me. And he doesn't believe in women."

He proposed that they have just one bottle of champagne to celebrate the fact that their futures were all decided. Robin reminded him, smilingly, of his vows. "Why, I haven't tasted liquor since I met you," he protested. "And I feel as if I'd known you forever. Forever's a long time to go without a drink!"

He left two days later for his summer job and Robin was pretty lonesome. She decided rather suddenly on a month of sketching and painting along the Gaspé coast, since there she would be that much nearer Will. She drove up to Percé; and there was delay in forwarding his letters, and she was homesick for him before the first one reached her. He was working at Moose Bay, where a tremendous paper mill was being built on the north shore of the St. Lawrence. He wrote:

"This is a great place here, a big job. I wish you could see it. You'd find plenty of pictures everywhere. A year and a half ago this was all wilderness; but now they have three thousand men at work, and the storage warehouse is done, and the mill half done..."

There followed more personal passages. He wrote about his brother Angus:

"I shan't tell him about us this summer, darling. I don't want him to know about you yet. He's grand, really; and he's been father and mother and brother to me ever since I was a baby. It isn't his fault he's the way he is—feels the way he does about girls. He was pretty shamefully treated by one. It's an ugly yarn, and not worth repeating. The only good part of it was that he wasn't actually married to her. They were to have been married the next day. That's how close a thing it was; and it left scars on him that are still open, that may never heal. Unless you can help heal them. After he knows you, we'll be able to make him understand..." she read eagerly. Robin read the letter twice, and she decided she was tired of Percé and its Rock and its busloads of tourists. She wanted to see Will! The hotel was first-rate, he said. She decided to go to Moose Bay. She would not write him that she was coming. She wanted to surprise him, to see his eyes shine.

The steamer White Queen, plying from Quebec to Moose Bay and points beyond, would stop by prearrangement at Rimouski to pick up passengers. Robin prearranged the stop. She decided to take two days to drive the 300 miles from Percé. She would want to do some sketching along the way; and people told her things she must see to see. The salmon pool on York River, above Gaspé, was one of them. She made the necessary detour, and found the place and parked her car.

She found two men standing together watching the salmon, talking quietly; and she looked at the fish and was surprised to see so few. "There aren't very many, are there?" she remarked.

Both men turned to look at her; but it was one of them that her attention fastened. Most men, seeing Robin for the first time, felt a quick friendliness and liking. She may not have been particularly pretty; but she looked like a nice girl and one whom it would be fun to know. Robin was used to seeing fish thought in their eyes; but this man's eyes did not change expression when he looked at her. They remained grave and still; and they were so steady they were almost stern. She had tried to do a portrait now and then. She thought she would like to try him. His face was paintable!

"About a hundred and fifty," he said; and he explained that it was still early in the summer. "There'll be more here later. We'll have five hundred, by the first of August."

Robin knew something about salmon; she had even fished for them once or twice with her father before he died and left her quite alone. But also she wanted to hear this man talk; to watch his eyes. "Where do you get them all?" she asked.

"From nets and traps, at the mouth of the river. We tow them up here in boxes, keep them here till it's time to strip them."

"Salmon flop around so when you take them out of water," she remembered. "I don't see how you can hold them still long enough to get the eggs." She smiled as she spoke as though her own question were amusing; but he did not smile.

His gravity was not exactly forbidding. She tried to define it to herself. She thought it was wary.

"We pick them up in a dip net," he said, "and let them flop till they're tired themselves out. When they're quiet, you take a fish by the tail with one hand, and tuck his head under your armpit, and hold him so; strip the eggs into the trays."

She said teasingly: "You mean 'her' don't you?"

But he was not amused. "Yes," he said. She felt confused, felt she had been convicted of improper levity. She wanted to break the surface of his calm.

"Grill are all right to fertilize the eggs, aren't they?" she enquired.

"Not very satisfactory, no. They don't have much milk." As though he felt he had answered all the questions she could possibly ask, he resumed his conversation with the other man.

So Robin drove away, but she remembered him, wondering about his eyes. She stopped the first night at Madeleine, and saw him in the dining room and nodded and smiled. He nodded, but without smiling. Later she heard him talking with someone about the salmon in Madeleine River. He was clearly an expert on the subject; and she began to think of him as the Salmon Man. They were speaking of the beauty of the pools four or five miles upstream, and after dinner, with an hour or so before dark, Robin decided to drive up the river road.

The road began well enough, but it presently degenerated into wheel tracks and narrowed to a shelf along a precipitous wooded hillside, with crumbling cliffs above and a fearsome slope below. She came suddenly around an angle of the cliff and out on what once had been a railroad trestle, now planked, across which the road ran. The trestle curved, and there was no guard rail except an eight-inch timber bolted flat on the ends of the ties. It was too late to go anywhere but forward; but Robin felt her hair prick, and she held her breath till she was safe across. Her interest in scenic beauty was forgotten. She wanted to get back across that trestle before dark; but she had to drive a mile or two before she found a place wide enough to turn around. She retraced her way, glided gingerly out on the trestle, and came face to face with another car!

JOHN DESCRIBES TRUE CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I John 2:1-6; 3:13-15; 4:15-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.—I John 1:7.

Religion and life go together. To hold the tenets of Christian truth in one's head and not to have them move the heart is to deny the very faith one professes. Yet this is the danger which faces the believer—a temptation before which many have fallen. The result is that much of "what passes for Christianity in these days is very thin stuff, very remote from the original" (Shoemaker).

John was not content with such a weak imitation, and in his writings he set up the true standard of a forgiven and transformed life, living itself out in love and sacrificial service. If we have forgotten what God meant us to be in Christ, or are members of a church which has strayed from the true and living way, this lesson affords an opportunity for penitence and works meet thereunto.

The true Christian life must have I. Sin forgiven and Life Transformed (I John 2:1-6).

Not only at the beginning of the Christian life is sin dealt with and put away, but day by day—yes, moment by moment—we have the cleansing power of the blood of our Divine Advocate.

This is of the utmost importance, for God can only use clean channels for the outgoing of His power and grace to the world. We know our own weakness and the defiling presence of the world. But unlike the unregenerate man, we do not submit and go down; we turn to Christ for forgiveness and cleansing.

The transformation of life which thus comes to the believer is shown in obedience to the commandments of God. In the early church there were those who said that if they only believed in Christ as Saviour it made no difference how they lived—and so here their followers in our day.

Be sure of this, the essential thing in Christian profession is not how you talk about Christ, but how you walk in obedience to His commandments.

Real Christianity will cause us to be

II. Hated by the World and Loved by the Brethren (I John 3:13-18).

The world, that is, unregenerate mankind, hates a genuine Christian no matter how kind and loving he may be. Why? "Because the Christian believer gives the non-believer an uncomfortable sense of inferiority. The presence of high Christian ideals in marked contrast to his own selfish policies arouses his anger and resentment" (Douglass).

The presence of a clean, godly life in a community makes every sinner look that much blacker, and the world, the flesh, and the devil will do everything possible to break down and destroy such a testimony.

We, as Christians, should not be surprised that the world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity really means anything, it is distasteful to a God-hating world. Beware if sinners find nothing in your life which distresses them and convicts them of sin.

In the midst of enmity the Christian is not afraid, for he is

III. Indwelt by God and Unafraid in the World (I John 4:15-17).

A sincere confession of Christ as Saviour brings a man into that close relationship to God which is expressed in the words, "God abideth in him, and he in God" (v. 15).

The full depth of meaning of these words is obviously beyond our limited understanding, but we accept the fact by faith and rejoice in it. We recognize that it means that we are brought by our faith in Christ, into the very center of God's love. Christ, the well-beloved Son, who stands in that blessed place, draws us into the circle and there we stand in Him.

God's love showed itself in the giving of His Son as the Redeemer of the world. It was and is unselfish and sacrificial devotion to the eternal welfare of those who merited only judgment. We do not love until we reflect that quality in our lives.

Such love casts out fear. Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules it out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out in warm devotion to Him.

Not only does the Christian no longer fear the day of judgment, but he is unafraid in the present evil world. This is not because of his own strength or ability, but because through faith in Christ he is "in God," and "as He is, so are we in this world" (v. 17). No more perfect or blessed ground of assurance could possibly be provided. Let us recognize our position in Him, and be strong and unafraid.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

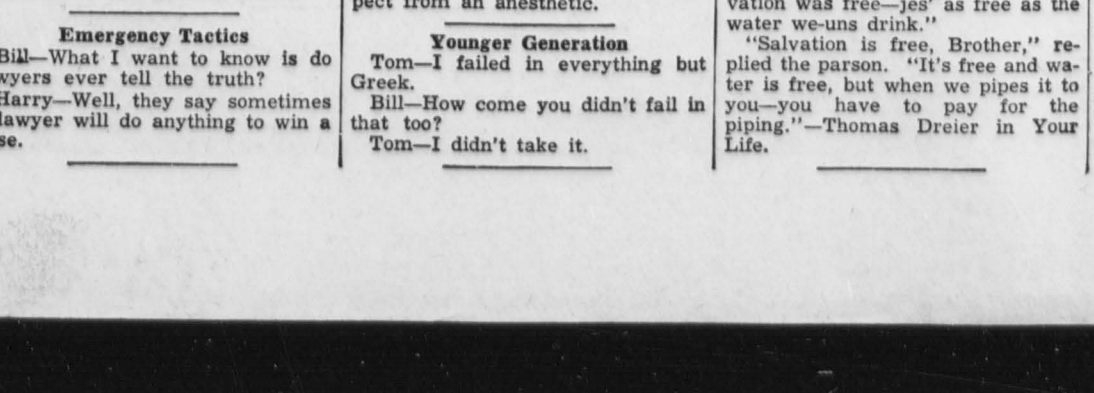

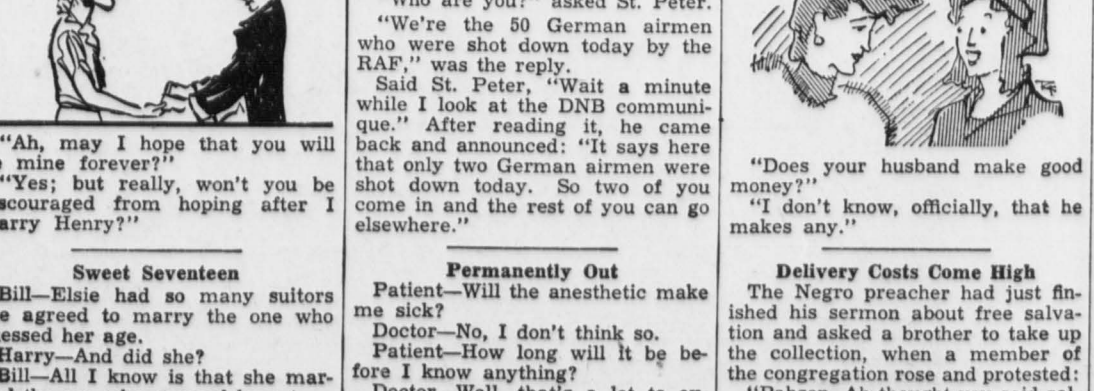

Your kidneys are constantly straining to remove waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Shopkeeper Took Next Best Thing Offered Him

Wishing to dispose of his dog, a man who was moving into the city went to the local pet shopkeeper. "Do you think you can sell this dog for $200?" he asked of the man.

"But, sir, that type of dog is not worth that much," was the reply of the astonished agent.

But the other insisted, and left. Some weeks later he returned and, asking about his dog, was told that it had been sold.

"Do you really mean to tell me that you got the $200 that I asked?" he inquired.

"Well, not exactly," said the shopkeeper. "You see, I exchanged it for two $100 cats."

Can't Fool Everybody

A crowd of German airmen arrived at the gate of heaven and clamored to get in.

"Who are you?" asked St. Peter.

"We're the 50 German airmen who were shot down today by the RAF," was the reply.

Said St. Peter, "Wait a minute while I look at the DNB communiqué." After reading it, he came back and announced: "It says here that only two German airmen were shot down today. So two of you come in and the rest of you can go elsewhere."

Haden and the dog were squirrel hunting, and when Haden was ready to go home he couldn't find his dog. He thought the dog would come in, but several days passed and she didn't come. One day Robert Montgomery and Beecher Jenkins were in the woods and shot into the top of a tree. A dog started barking, which at first they thought was on the other side of the hill. Then they discovered it was inside the tree. They started digging and there was Haden's dog, alive but very weak, as she had been there 10 days. She had been digging after a squirrel and as the inside of the tree was rotten and soft, the opening in the tree stopped up, leaving the dog trapped inside. Luckily there was a hole in the tree which served as a window to admit air.

LET'S ALL "fresh up"

"Our family... your family... all Americans are working hard for Victory—working harder than ever before. To keep doing our best, we must never let fatigue tension get the upper hand. Before that happens, it's wise to say... 'Let's all fresh up with 7-Up.' Your family, too, will enjoy 7-Up's clean-tasting, exclusive flavor. You like 7-Up—and 7-Up likes you".
